SPECIAL WORKSHOP
The ASC Code of Ethics and the Role of the Department Chair*
Tuesday, November 13th, 2:30pm-5pm Room M101, Marquis Level

In 2016, the ASC membership approved the Code of Ethics with the goals of providing a set of general principles and ethical standards to guide criminologists in their professional responsibilities and conduct, and to express the values and ideals of the ASC for ethical behavior by ASC members in the context of their professional activities. Department chairs are often the individuals to whom faculty and students initially report a potential ethics violation. The purpose of this interactive workshop is to help department chairs understand the various elements of the ASC Code of Ethics and the types of complaints they may receive, as well as share strategies for preventing ethics violations and for responding to various types of complaints.

Facilitators: Margaret Weigers Vitullo, Deputy Director, American Sociological Association
Jay Albanese, Virginia Commonwealth University, ASC Ethics Committee Chair
Claire Renzetti, University of Kentucky, ASC Ethics Committee Member

Participation Fee: $50

*Although this workshop is intended for department chairs, others in departmental supervisory roles, such as program directors and directors of graduate studies, may also benefit from participating.

If you have questions or would like additional information, please contact Claire Renzetti (Claire.renzetti@uky.edu) or Jay Albanese (jsalbane@vcu.edu).
