

Arcadia University

Position/Rank: Assistant Professor of Criminal Justice, tenure track
Department of Sociology, Anthropology, & Criminal Justice

The Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice invites applications for a tenure track appointment in criminal justice, beginning August 2019.

Qualifications: A Ph.D. in criminal justice/criminology or sociology is preferred by the time of appointment. Applicants must have strong commitment to the undergraduate teaching of criminal justice at both introductory and advanced levels, a demonstrated research agenda, the ability to collaborate on pedagogical matters with colleagues, and the capability to provide departmental and University service.

The criminal justice program has a strong commitment to experiential and applied teaching, critical thinking, social justice, and teaching and working with culturally diverse populations. Applicants should be prepared to teach courses in introduction to criminal justice, research methods, and prisons and corrections, and ideally at least one of the following areas: women and crime, critical criminology and social justice, cybercrime, juvenile delinquency, drugs and society or communities and crime.

Candidates able to contribute to one or more of the department's other programs (see below) will receive strong consideration.

The Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice at Arcadia University

Arcadia University's Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice offers students a unique and transformative opportunity to explore the concepts of social justice and social change through these interrelated programs. Students are eligible to earn B.A. degrees in Criminal Justice, Cultural Anthropology, and Sociology. The hands-on curriculum at Arcadia offers students the possibility to further enhance their social justice education by minoring in Anthropology, Criminal Justice, Gender and Sexuality Studies, Pan-African Studies, and Sociology.

Distinguished by outstanding faculty members and a sense of belonging in a large global community, Arcadia's Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminal Justice encourages students to see and facilitate changes in themselves, their communities, and the world.

Application Process:

To apply, please visit: <https://faculty-arcadia.icims.com/jobs/> and submit a letter of application describing teaching philosophy and research interests, curriculum vita, teaching evaluation summaries and contact information for 3 references (email and work telephone number).

Applications received by November 30, 2018 will receive full consideration.

Arcadia University seeks candidates of diverse cultural backgrounds and abilities. As an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer, Arcadia University encourages members of underrepresented groups to apply. All offers of employment are conditional based upon successful completion of a background check.