Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology

Open Rank Tenure Track Positions

The Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology is seeking candidates for multiple open-rank tenure-track positions to begin Fall 2019. Candidates must have a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice, Criminology, or a closely related academic field; area(s) of specialization are open with primary consideration given to candidates who will contribute to the Department's undergraduate and graduate educational missions, research productivity, and service. The successful candidate is expected to teach core courses in the Department's academic degree programs, have an active research agenda that includes a strong publication record, potential for (or record of) externally funded research, and demonstrate a commitment to quality teaching and mentoring of students. Salary is competitive with other research-oriented, doctoral programs.

The faculty in the Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology were recently identified as the most prolific publishers among CJ and Criminology doctoral programs (Kleck & Mims, 2016). As one of the largest criminal justice programs in the U.S., our Department offers B.A., B.S., M.A., and M.S. degrees in Criminal Justice and Criminology, Victim Studies, Victim Services Management, and Criminal Justice Leadership and Management, as well as a Ph.D. in Criminal Justice. Faculty have exceptional research opportunities due to the Department's strong relationships with agencies throughout the state and nationally. Located on the edge of the Sam Houston National Forest and 30 miles north of the Houston Metropolitan area, Sam Houston State University continues to be named among the Chronicle of Higher Education's "Great Colleges to Work For."

To ensure full consideration, applications must be submitted online at: <https://shsu.peopleadmin.com/> and should include a letter of interest, a current vita, and the names and contact information for a minimum of three references addressed to: Dr. Travis Franklin, Search Committee Chair, Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology, Sam Houston State University, Huntsville, Texas 77341-2296. Applications may also be submitted electronically to tfranklin@shsu.edu. Applicants should indicate they are applying for an open-specialization position. Review of materials will begin September 14, 2018 and will continue until the search is completed.
