

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR IN SOCIOLOGY

Position Description: The Department of Sociology at the University of Montana is seeking applicants for a full-time tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in the area of criminology beginning Fall 2019. Preference will be given to candidates with research specialties in inequality and crime and/or inequality in the criminal justice system (e.g., scholars researching crime and race/ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, or social class).

Responsibilities include teaching face-to-face courses and online courses, providing mentoring to undergraduate and Master's-level graduate students, conducting and publishing scholarly research, seeking extramural funding, and providing professional service to the department, university, and the discipline. The successful candidate will be expected to teach at least one course that contributes to the department's sociology core (Introduction to Sociology, Social Statistics, Social Research Methods, and/or Classical Sociological Theory); the remaining courses will contribute to the criminology option. Course descriptions and further information about the department are available at www.umt.edu/sociology/.

The University of Montana is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and has a student body of approximately 12,000 undergraduates and graduates, including more than 1,500 students of color and more than 400 international students from more than 70 countries. We encourage applications from minorities, veterans, and women. Qualified candidates may request veterans' or disability preference in accordance with state law. In accordance with University policy, finalists for this position will be subject to criminal background investigations.

Required Qualifications:

- 1) Applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology or Criminology from an accredited university. Candidates from a criminology program should be comfortable working in a sociology program. ABD applicants will be considered if doctorate will be in hand by the starting date. Applicants with a J.D. or Ed.D. only will not be considered.
- 2) Demonstrated record of an active research agenda in criminology.
- 3) Enthusiasm for teaching in the area of criminology.

Preferred Qualifications:

- 1) Substantive work in the area of inequality and crime and/or inequality in the criminal justice system (e.g., gender and crime, race/ethnicity and crime, sexual orientation and crime, social class and crime, etc.).
- 2) Experience with undergraduate teaching and/or mentoring.
- 3) Teaching experience that complements the department's current offerings in the areas of criminology and inequality/social justice.
- 4) Experience in online education.
- 5) Potential to make interdisciplinary research partnerships.

HOW TO APPLY

Screening of applications will begin on January 17, 2019 and will continue until the position is filled.

*Upload the following materials: Please note: only five (5) attachments are allowed per application. Please combine documents accordingly (all documents may be combined into one file for uploading).

- A letter of intent
- A current curriculum vita (CV)
- A research statement
- A teaching statement
- The names and contact information from three (3) professional references able to attest to the candidate's qualifications

After initial review, applicants who are chosen to receive further consideration will be asked to provide sample publications, sample syllabi, teaching evaluations, and confidential letters of recommendation from their professional references.
